

HOW TO WIN MUN

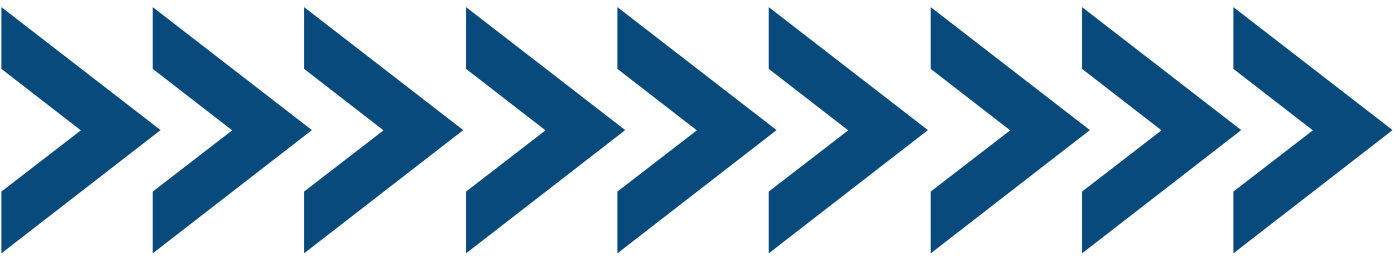

1. PREPARATION

If this is your first MUN, we understand that this can be an overwhelming experience. However, the best way to overcome your nerves is to be prepared. Which is why the first step to succeed is to profoundly investigate your topic, as well as your committee. We also suggest bringing along an extra copy of this investigation neatly organized in a folder for quicker access during the simulation.

2. INVESTIGATION

The best way to succeed in MUN is having a good understanding about your topic and committee, which you can find in our LIMUN's webpage. However, we recommend doing additional research on your delegation's posture, as well as everyone else's. We urge you to use various and reliable resources, in order to reach a further understanding and have a better chance to win the debate.

3. PRESENTATION

At the time of the debate, the moment you get to defend your posture, it's important to make sure that everyone is paying attention to you. But don't worry! We have a few ideas that might help you to achieve this.

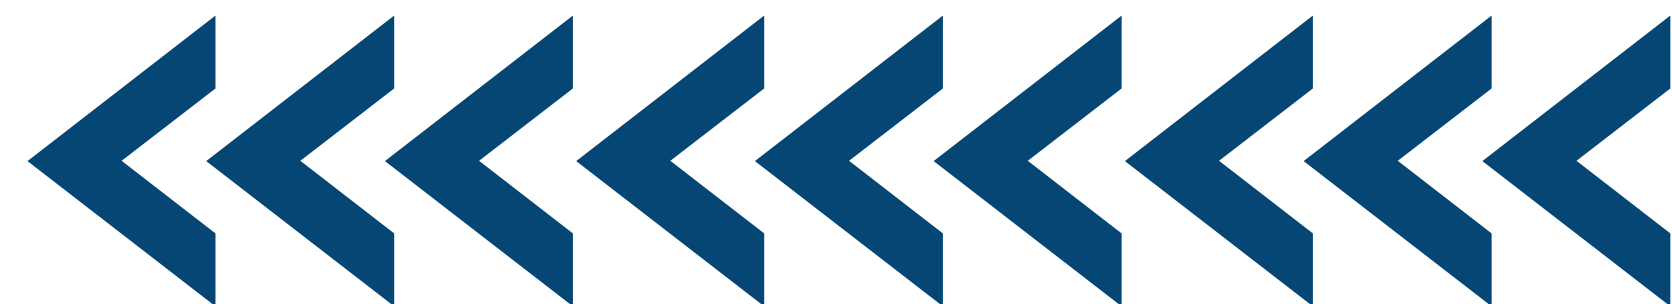

- Maintain a clear and assertive voice, make sure everyone understands what you're saying.
- If you're saying something to a specific delegate, make sure to keep eye contact with them.

Remember!: the best way to persuade another delegate is if you emit a sense of reliability and self confidence.

4. WRITING

In the speaker list part of the simulation you will have the opportunity to introduce your delegation and its posture to the other delegates. That's why it's important to practice your position paper. Therefore, we recommend practicing the delivery of the paper to your relatives or close friends before the event, that way they could help you by asking some questions or calming your nerves. Remember, if you make some great points on this part of the debate, it could help you have an advantage for the rest of the simulation.

5. GENERALLY SPEAKING

Always be respectful, a good sport and a great diplomat. Bear in mind that you're not only representing your country, but the United Nations. And most importantly, remember to always have fun and enjoy every moment of this wonderful event.
